

Revealing the identity of the entity behind the author of the VMS

Eureka!

After taking a recent poster-to-the-VMS-List's hints to heart, I threw out all the non-Latin-letter-based glyphs and rearranged and otherwise fiddled with the remaining 4 or 5.

With those manipulations, I think I have at last figured out what was written on one or more of the missing pages (f12r or f12v ?) and is the main secret of the VMS (and probably the reason for that particular page's removal from the manuscript). It also helps explain why there are so few Latin-alphabet-letters based glyphs.

I had never even dreamed this method might reveal the entity responsible for the VMS or that it was founded so early although it has continued to exist and grow until today and is now the world's leading concocter of (once considered magical and medicinal) potions.

I think the missing page(s) may be locked in a vault in a large US city for security reasons.

The secret is shown at the end of this section, which, if read, obligates the reader to send me a bucket full of money for the sharing of my findings with the reader.

If you look at or have looked at the secret, please use a standard sized bucket or pail (not a kid's sandbox or beach toy) and fill to within one-half inch of the top rim with 20's, 50's and 100's (US currency) in equal numbers, cover, wrap and send. (Poor people may send 10's, 5's and 1's.) Please do not fold, crumple, spindle or mutilate the bills, if possible.

I am keeping track of all who look at the secret, so don't try to get out of paying.

Thank you, recent poster, for the hint.

And thank you, readers who pay up promptly. :)

Don of Tallahassee
donoftallahassee@comcast.net

The

mysteriously

missing

glyph

words

on

the

missing

folios

(f12r and f12v)

probably

included

the

following

sequences:

coca coga

He he he. The Devil made me do it.